

Paper Presentation Series by I MA Students

A Paper Presentation Series titled SOFIA was organized by the PG Department of English Sree Narayana College Alathur. I MA English students was held on 16th December 2024, Monday, where 16 students presented their research on various topics related to English Literature. The event, which aimed to showcase the diverse scholarly interests and research endeavors of the students, was a significant platform for academic exchange and intellectual engagement within the department.

The presentations covered a wide array of subjects in English Literature, ranging from classical to contemporary themes, including literary analysis, critical theory, and the exploration of different literary genres. The students demonstrated their deep understanding of the texts, applying various literary theories and perspectives to their analyses.

Each student presented their paper in a structured and engaging manner, sparking thoughtful discussions and insightful questions from both peers and faculty.

The series not only allowed students to develop their public speaking and presentation skills but also promoted critical thinking and research methodology, key components of their academic journey.

In conclusion, SOFIA demonstrated the intellectual vitality and enthusiasm of the I MA students in the field of English Literature. The event proved to be an invaluable experience, highlighting the students' academic growth and fostering a culture of learning and scholarly dialogue within the department.
